CARRANZA FIRM AGAINST GRANTING AMNESTY TO FOES

His Attitude Menaces Plans for Transfer of Government to Mexico City.

WASHINGTON, July 27.—Assembly of the conference at Saltillo to arrange for the transfer of administration in Mexico City anxiously was awaited here to-day. A hitch during the meeting over Carranza's attitude toward the question of amnesty for his enemies appeared as a possibility. Nevertheless, Washington officials clung to hope that a middle ground might be reached for peaceful adjustment of the problem.

New advices from Tampico indicated the Constitutional leader was not disposed formally to grant amnesty prior to his occupation of Mexico City. People in the territory once controlled by Huerta object to that policy.

They have urged the new Provisional President not to turn over the Government until he has obtained from the Constitutionalists the proper guarantees, and Carranza has received many offers of support in case Carranza continues to insist upon surrender without conditions.

Reginaldo Cepeda, one of Carranza's envoys, was to confer to-day with Carranza at Tampico, while the other members of the peace commission—Gen. Lauro Villar and Judge David Gutierrez—were to start for Saltillo. Gen. Villar, it was believed, would be entirely acceptable to the Constitutionalists because of his clean military record. Judge Alende has had no recent part in Mexican politics and is not connected with any political party.

Felicias Villareal, Acting Secretary of the Treasury in the Constitutional Cabinet, declared in Washington to-day that unconditional surrender from Carranza was all that Carranza would accept.

"The Constitutionalists," he said, "confidently expect that the present revolution will be the last one to sweep Mexico for many generations to come. Accordingly, the house-cleaning must be thorough, the basis for permanent peace substantial." Mr. Villareal added that Carranza would be generous toward the large body of men who have opposed the Constitutionalists. "An era of unprecedented prosperity is about to open in Mexico," he declared, "and the Constitutionalists do not desire to usher it in with a chastening of vindictiveness and hatred that would result in staging any programme of wholesale execution of Federal supporters in Mexico City."

GUARDSMEN NOW MUST SHOOT AT MOVING MANNIKINS

New Rifle Range at Peekskill
Will Have No Fixed Targets.

The National Guardsmen of this city now have the chance to demonstrate just how efficient they are as marksmen when it comes to campaign conditions. A soldier may be a good shot when he fires at the conventional target, but may prove to be ineffective when he uses his rifle in the field. It is to give the city militiamen an opportunity to show what he can do under service that the new State rifle range was opened to-day at Peekskill. The Twenty-second Battalion of Engineers was the first organization ordered to the new range.

This range, which replaces the expensive range laid out at Haverly, N. Y., and afterward found to be useless owing to its proximity to Nyack, has the Dunderberg for a background and there is no danger from flying bullets, as there is no town within five miles.

Instead of being equipped with the usual targets, the range is threaded with entrenchments such as an enemy would throw up. Behind these are mannikins operated by wires which are made to rise above the earthworks in the postures of men firing. As soon as they appear the militiamen are to fire at them. They will not move with a regularity which would make them easy to hit, but will be made to behave rather as men in an engagement. And when the day's work is over the dummies will tell the story of the marksmanship of the militiamen.

The range cost the State only $27,000, against $470,000 expended on the Haverly range. In addition to being a range, there will be upon the ground a school of marksmanship presided over by Col. Nathaniel B. Thurston, chief ordnance officer on the staff of Major Gen. James J. O'Ryan, commander of the State Guard.

Every one of the New York City regiments will be sent to the new range for a day. Gen. O'Ryan is enthusiastic over the new arrangement. "Now we'll show what a fine body of troops we have in the guard," he said, "because this plan will put them to the best kind of a test. It will make the proper kind of marksmen of our militiamen."

FIRE CHAUFFEUR BECOMES NURSE FOR SIX PUPPIES

Pedigree Dalmatians, Orphaned by Auto, Thrive on Bole-tie Diet.

With his other duties John McGrail, chauffeur for Deputy Chief Langford of the Fire Department, is acting as nurse for half a dozen clumsy Dalmatian puppies at the Deputy Chief's headquarters, No. 135 Lafayette street. The puppies became orphans Saturday night when their mother, Bess, a four-year-old thoroughbred, was killed by an automobile in Lafayette street in front of Chief Langford's quarters.

When assigned by the chief to conserve the puppies, McGrail purchased six sanitary nursing bottles with non-colic nipples and arranged for a supply of certified milk. The pups miss their mother, but are beginning to accustom themselves to the bottle diet and will undoubtedly survive to be distributed among various fire houses and become Fire Department mascots.

Bess was one of the original litter presented to Engine No. 57, in East Sixty-seventh street, by William K. Vanderbilt Jr. Before Chief Langford got an automobile Bess followed his wagon to all fires, but she couldn't keep up with his gasoline car.

A Great Sale at 85c

—or Six Shirts for $5

Read first this true story.

A man bought some shirts in another store's sale at $2.35. Paid 15 cents extra for altering sleeves. Walked into Wanamaker's a little later the same day and found the identical shirts at $1.85. Called up the other store. Ordered the sale cancelled. Salesman refused, saying it was impossible that Wanamaker's could have shirts at a less price. A hot colloquy followed. Finally the salesman said, "I will go look at those shirts at Wanamaker's. If they are the same as ours I will cancel the sale." * * * The shirts were never delivered and the sale was cancelled.

As a matter of fact, these very shirts are now in this sale at 85c.

Those who don't want to have this man's experience are cautioned to see first these shirts at 85c, for we give this warning that they are the best we have ever offered at the price.
